The Block Island Wind Farm in Rhode Island has made offshore wind a reality in the Northeast. Other states in the region – from Massachusetts to Maryland – are now moving quickly to grab a share of the wind energy from permitted areas in federal waters along the eastern seaboard.

Connecticut plans to sign contracts for offshore wind this summer.

Come join a dialogue with local labor, religious, business and environmental leaders about how offshore wind development can bring jobs, clean air, and clean energy to southeastern Connecticut.
